NRECA VOTING DELEGATES

The Regional Meetings are an important step in the member resolutions process. Your Region will vote on proposed resolutions and elect representatives to the three Member Standing Committees: Legislative; Regulatory; and Cooperative Management, Employment and Community.

The Nominating Committees met via phone the week of Oct. 5, 2020 to nominate candidates for election to the Member Standing Committees. The candidates are elected by the voting delegates during the Regional Business Meeting.

The Regional Resolutions Committee considers each resolution in the Compendium of Proposed Resolutions and any additional resolutions. The committee forwards its recommendations to the voting delegates for consideration at the Regional Business Meeting.

To view your state's representative(s) on the regional resolutions and nominating committees and to review your region's business meeting materials (available by end of day Oct. 13), please visit www.cooperative.com/Member-Resolutions-Regional-Meetings.

Online instructions for NRECA Voting Delegates

NRECA voting delegates and alternate delegates must be registered for their region's business meeting to participate. Each NRECA voting member system may only have one vote. If the voting delegate is unable to attend the business meeting, the alternate delegate may attend and cast the system's vote. Please contact votingdelegates@nreca.coop if your voting delegate is unable to attend.

Online voting technology will be used to cast votes at the regional business meetings. Please visit www.cooperative.com/Member-Resolutions-Regional-Meetings for detailed instructions on the voting system and how to cast votes. ## BREAKOUT SESSIONS

Strategic Energy Leadership: Charting America's Energy Future

Susan Eisenhower

Strategic Energy Policy Leader

In the next 15 years, the U.S. will need to invest more than two trillion dollars in its energy infrastructure, and our leaders don't yet have a comprehensive strategy for executing these much-needed improvements. Citing present-day and historical examples, energy strategist Susan Eisenhower helps organizations understand how we can advance a comprehensive national energy policy, while educating the public on the critical nature of our challenges. Includes an interview with Scott Peterson, NRECA.

Disrupting Energy: Why Accelerating Science and Technology Is Disrupting the Future of Energy, Faster Than You Think

Jim Carroll

Futurist, Trends and Innovation Expert

The future belongs to those who are fast – and nowhere has this become a reality faster than in the world of energy and utilities.

The next phase of the world of energy involves the convergence of a variety of trends, each of which is significant on their own, but combined, provide an opportunity for massive disruption – and reinvention: massive hyper-connectivity; rapid advancement of energy science, particularly with battery storage and alternative energy sources; business model disruption; energy microgrids; and new demand and infrastructure requirements.

Q&A moderated by Keith Dennis, NRECA.

BREAKOUT SESSIONS

Strategic Energy Leadership: Charting America's Energy Future

Susan Eisenhower

Strategic Energy Policy Leader

In the next 15 years, the U.S. will need to invest more than two trillion dollars in its energy infrastructure, and our leaders don't yet have a comprehensive strategy for executing these much-needed improvements. Citing present-day and historical examples, energy strategist Susan Eisenhower helps organizations understand how we can advance a comprehensive national energy policy, while educating the public on the critical nature of our challenges. Includes an interview with Scott Peterson, NRECA.

Disrupting Energy: Why Accelerating Science and Technology Is Disrupting the Future of Energy, Faster Than You Think

Jim Carroll

Futurist, Trends and Innovation Expert

The future belongs to those who are fast – and nowhere has this become a reality faster than in the world of energy and utilities.

The next phase of the world of energy involves the convergence of a variety of trends, each of which is significant on their own, but combined, provide an opportunity for massive disruption – and reinvention: massive hyper-connectivity; rapid advancement of energy science, particularly with battery storage and alternative energy sources; business model disruption; energy microgrids; and new demand and infrastructure requirements.

Q&A moderated by Keith Dennis, NRECA.

BREAKOUT SESSIONS

Strategic Energy Leadership: Charting America's Energy Future

Susan Eisenhower

Strategic Energy Policy Leader

In the next 15 years, the U.S. will need to invest more than two trillion dollars in its energy infrastructure, and our leaders don't yet have a comprehensive strategy for executing these much-needed improvements. Citing present-day and historical examples, energy strategist Susan Eisenhower helps organizations understand how we can advance a comprehensive national energy policy, while educating the public on the critical nature of our challenges. Includes an interview with Scott Peterson, NRECA.

Disrupting Energy: Why Accelerating Science and Technology Is Disrupting the Future of Energy, Faster Than You Think

Jim Carroll

Futurist, Trends and Innovation Expert

The future belongs to those who are fast – and nowhere has this become a reality faster than in the world of energy and utilities.

The next phase of the world of energy involves the convergence of a variety of trends, each of which is significant on their own, but combined, provide an opportunity for massive disruption – and reinvention: massive hyper-connectivity; rapid advancement of energy science, particularly with battery storage and alternative energy sources; business model disruption; energy microgrids; and new demand and infrastructure requirements.

Q&A moderated by Keith Dennis, NRECA.
