Entry Process

1. *What is this year's deadline?

All entries must be paid for and entered into NRECA's online system by October 28, 2019 (midnight EDT).

2. *I entered before, but I didn't win. Why should I enter again?

While this is a new program, we had a very large pool of talented candidates. Similar to other award programs, this is highly competitive, and may take more than one cycle to win.

3. *Can a consultant submit an entry for the LaBerge Award?

No. Only a co-op employee can create and submit an entry for this award.

4. *If I am entering a colleague, will the nominee know that I submitted an entry?

No. The person who submitted the application will be the one to receive communication about the entry. The submitter will receive the notification on whether their nominee won. However, upon request by the submitter, NRECA can notify the nominee that he or she has been nominated.

Online Payment and Entry Form

7. *How does the online entry and payment system work?

No, you must complete your entry all at once. If you exit and attempt to return to the online entry system you will discover that your entry will have not have been saved and you will have to begin the application process again. We recommend that you print and fill out a hard copy of the application worksheet prior to beginning the electronic version so that you are prepared for all sections.

LaBerge Award for Strategic Communications

9. *What type of communicator should be nominated for the LaBerge Award?

The LaBerge award recognizes an electric cooperative communicator who has demonstrated excellence, influence and impact in co-op communications, both as a practitioner and contributor across the network. The ideal candidate is a communications professional that is experienced but is currently on the rise in his or her career.

Judges, Scoring, Notification and Recognition

10. *What does the profile of a winning entry look like?

The profile of a winning entry completely and adequately describes how the nominee meets the criteria within the three categories that comprise the award's application in their written descriptions. The categories are; Cooperation Among Cooperatives, Education, Training and Information and "Always On" Approach. Nominators should pay special attention to the "Always On" Approach category, which prompts you to describe how your nominee has embodies this principle to advance strategic electric co-op communication. You can read more about the "Always On" program here.

We recommend that a nominator includes metrics, proof and tangible examples that illustrate why the candidate meets each criterion. If you have an excellent candidate, but the entry doesn't adequately demonstrate why the communicator is award-worthy he/she is not likely to earn maximum points.

11. *Who judges the entries?

A three-person panel of judges works separately and independently to determine the winning entry. The panel consists of a senior leader who has just recently left the NRECA network and two current members of the Certified Cooperative Communicator Program or the Cooperative Communicators Association.

12. *How does the scoring system work?

The judges score submissions based off a finite rubric that is composed of 100 possible points. It is the responsibility of the submitter to fulfill the criteria the judges are evaluating. You can review more background on the criteria the judges will be looking for in the LaBerge Guidelines (PDF).

13. *How is supplemental material weighed by the judges?

Supplemental material is entirely optional. It is up to the discretion of the judges to decide whether they will consider the extra material in the scoring process.

14. *When can I expect to receive general feedback?

If you requested and paid the additional fee, you can expect to receive general feedback on your submission by February.

The “Always On” program is linked to the LaBerge Award because of the emphasis the entry form places on the “Always On” Approach. Nominators are asked to explain why their nominee utilizes this communication model to advance strategic electric co-op communications.
